SPC's NASA instructors to give talk March 27

LEVELLAND – Four South Plains College instructors who recently participated in NASA's Reduced Gravity Project will talk about their experiences at 10:45 a.m. March 27 in the Fine Arts Auditorium.

The public is invited to attend.

Instructors Charlotte Young, assistant professor of computer science; Alan Worley, assistant professor of mathematics; and Shirley Davis, assistant professor of mathematics; participated in the conducting experiments in zero gravity. John Sparks, chairperson of the Communications Department and professor of journalism, videotaped the experience.

For more information, contact Young at (806) 716-2666.
